Theresa Saxe received her BS in Music Performance and her BA in Psychology from Adelphi University in 2017. Her award-winning research includes topics in music history and the psychology of music. In addition, she has training in vocal health and anatomy.

Theresa's passion for music began when she joined her first church choir at five years old. After singing with Our Lady of the Angels Schola (2008-), Theresa was inspired to continue her music education on the collegiate level to learn more about the Church's rich history of sacred music. Before becoming the Director of Sacred Music at St. Elizabeth Ann Seton RCC, Theresa conducted the Schola of the Sacred Heart (2018-2020), taught sacred music workshops for both children and adults, and performed at numerous concerts throughout New York, New Jersey, and Canada. When she is not making music or teaching, Theresa enjoys playing tennis, learning foreign languages, and traveling with her husband.

Please return this completed form no later than Sunday, September 11 to Theresa Saxe after Mass or via email at theresaamsantos@gmail.com
